

Do I need a solicitor to get a divorce?

Harold Benjamin | Solicitors

Divorce is a legal process carried out by the civil courts.

The process can be daunting but need not be difficult with the right professional advice.

At Harold Benjamin we will guide you through the legal process and advise you of your options in a caring and professional way.

Our solicitors have the expertise and experience to deal with your matter effectively and efficiently which may cost you less.

We will

Explain the complete divorce process to you in plain English

Prepare all the paperwork for you

Deal with all the correspondence

Keep you regularly informed of the progress of your case

Be upfront about the costs

What will we need to know?

We will need a variety of details and documents from you including:

- Your marriage certificate
- The reasons you want to divorce
- The arrangements for any children of the family

A list of your assets, savings, income and pension arrangements and those of your spouse

What about the children?

The legal formality of getting a divorce is a relatively straightforward process.

However, much less straightforward are the practical issues such as where you will live, who gets what and the arrangements for the children.

It is wise to take advice from a specialist solicitor about your rights and the options available to you to help you find a workable solution to your personal situation.

What will it cost?

We recognise that legal costs can be significant and a worry.

In certain cases we offer a fixed fee divorce.

In other matters we aim where possible to keep our costs to a minimum.
